GFC REPORT ON UNDERGRADUATE WRITING SKILLS

The ad hoc Committee on Undergraduate Writing Skills, struck in June 1975, presented its report to General Faculties Council at Council's regular meeting on 27 September. Discussion of the report began at that meeting but, because of the lack of sufficient time and the apparent high level of interest in the subject, further discussion was postponed until the 25 October meeting. Even so, only two of the four sets of proposals could be considered in the more than two hours allotted at that meeting, and discussion of the remainder of the report has been postponed until the regular 29 November meeting. Folio presents here the resolutions adopted by GFC on 25 October plus a summary of the discussion at both the meetings; resolutions adopted and discussion taking place at the November meeting will be reported after that meeting.

The committee comprised five persons: R.G. Martin (Secondary Education), Chairman; J. Forrest (English), author of the Faculty of Arts Report on Proficiency in English; G.L. Gall (Law); T. McRorie (undergraduate student); and W. Vanden Born (Plant Science). The report was first presented to GFC Executive on 9 February 1976, whence it was referred to the faculties for their comments. The faculties' comments were received at the 10 May meeting of the executive and the committee's response to their comments received in August. In September, the GFC Executive Committee agreed to forward to Council without comment the report plus the ad hoc committee's response to the faculties' comments.

Philosophy and goals of the committee

The committee began with the premise that there was, in fact, a serious problem surrounding students' general lack of proficiency in English. Although it was argued in the first GFC discussion of the report that the committee had not determined the nature or extent of the problem, it was generally agreed by Council members and by the submissions of the faculties that an extremely urgent problem existed. The committee "did not seek to philosophize about it, to identify psychological or societal roots for it, to furnish a theoretical discussion of writing, nor to summarize the extensive research literature on the question."

Rather, they chose "to enumerate as many actions as appeared at all likely to contribute to a solution to the problem."

Dr. Martin referred to an assessment of the proficiency level of students in the Red Deer School District, carried out by Alberta Education. The assessment demonstrated a decline in achievement among students with no corresponding decline in ability. He felt that the assessment would hold true in any part of Alberta and that it demonstrated that Alberta is not immune to a phenomenon that is occurring throughout North America.

"Students," Dr. Martin said, "are undergoing unnecessary strain and academic jeopardy because they are lacking certain basic skills." The committee sought, therefore, to "provide possible, plausible, reasonable things that could be done" to ameliorate this situation.

The main disagreement with the report centred on recommendations in the areas of teacher preparation and certification, school curriculum, and teaching practice. The committee's approach was "that prevention will be vastly more effective than cure," and, therefore, the majority of recommendations were directed to actions affecting the pre-university level of education. While the committee did not formally contact groups such as the Alberta Teachers' Association, the school board, or Alberta Education, they did hold lengthy sessions with teachers of English, the Language Supervisor of Alberta Education, representatives of both public and separate school boards, NAIT and AVC, and members of the English Council of the Alberta Teachers' Association, all of whom supported the intentions of the committee's recommendations.

General discussion of the report

The report was discussed in a general way at the 27 September meeting of GFC.

Dean Baldwin reported that the Council of the Faculty of Arts endorsed the GFC committee's report and was implementing a series of thirty resolutions from its own report on proficiency in English. He noted that while both committees agreed that there were problems within the University itself that could be dealt with immediately, both had taken a broader view of the problem. The Faculty of Arts with its own resources, he said, could achieve little improvement in student proficiency in English. He said that the Faculty had sought and readily received cooperation from other jurisdictions, such as school boards, school trustees, the Alberta Teachers' Association, and Alberta Advanced Education and Manpower. These bodies, he said, "were looking to the University for initiative and guidance but . . . there was no suggestion that the University had the authority to dictate to external bodies."

Vice-President (Academic) Myer Horowitz, while agreeing with the urgency of the problem, felt that many of the recommendations of the report were inappropriate. He considered that "the University has a responsibility to give leadership to other levels of education and to indicate a willingness to work with others to arrive at solutions, but it should not recommend the solutions itself."

D.W. Murray (Engineering) remarked that the report had left him with "the impression that the problem was not the University's and therefore someone else should solve it." He further commented that "if the University considers the students to be deficient in writing skills it is the University's responsibility to improve these skills."

G. Davies (Law), speaking from his experience of remedial programs for Law students, said that "while the University cannot absolve itself entirely of the responsibility for the problem . . . the University can effect only a limited improvement." He agreed with the ad hoc committee that recommendations should be made concerning teacher training and school practices. "After a student has spent thirteen years in the school system," he said, it is naive to assume that the University can remedy problems which have arisen during that length of time."

General recommendations concerning the University
At the 25 October meeting, GFC discussed and voted upon the recommendations individually, beginning with Section C of the Report, "General Recommendations concerning the University."

C1. The Committee recommends that all students seeking first undergraduate admission to the University of Alberta be required to demonstrate acceptable competence in English on a suitable entrance examination administered by the University prior to admission, subject to provisions of Recommendation C3 for non-native speakers.

At the September GFC meeting, University of Calgary Students' Union President Pat Ruby O'Connor described that University's introduction of a special examination for all new students to establish whether they required remedial work in English. Ms. O'Connor explained that the department of English had administered an English test last year to a class of engineering students and a class of English students and that fifty percent of these students failed. Because of these poor results, the University decided to require that all new students take the test this fall. Of the students who were not on student visas (all but one hundred), fifty-five percent failed the examination and were now taking a remedial English program that would last twelve to sixteen weeks. At the end of that time, those students who were not then able to pass the examination would be required to continue a remedial English program until they met the requirements, or their eligibility to receive a degree from the University of Calgary would be jeopardized.

Both staff and student members were concerned whether the entrance examination being recommended by the GFC committee was intended to screen students requiring remedial attention or to bar students whose proficiency in English was below a certain standard.

Dr. Martin said that he favored the approach recommended by the Students' Union, that there be three levels of response to the examination results: completely refusing admission to students who scored below a certain minimal level of proficiency, allowing students with relatively superior writing skills to enter University without remedial action, and requiring the remainder who passed the minimum level but still needed help to take a compulsory remedial writing course. He agreed that there should be an initial few years of grace in which students would not be rejected on the basis of this examination but would be required to take a remedial English course.

Lorne Leitch, Vice-President (Finance and Administration), mentioned the cost implications of an entrance examination, and queried the priority with which the University

Planning Committee would be required to treat it.

The motion to approve this recommendation was amended so that the recommendation would be referred to the Admission Requirements Committee for implementation details, and so that remedial action would be tied to the examination for a certain period of time. The motion was approved as amended.

C2. The Committee recommends that General Faculties Council endorse, on an interim basis, periodic public lectures offering information and advice to undergraduate students on writing at university level, such as those given in the Fall Term of 1975-76 by the English Department at the instance of Students' Union.

Dr. Martin referred to Professor McKill's course offered through the Students' Union again this fall.

At the September GFC meeting, Vice-President Horowitz had commented that it was "disgraceful that the University had to rely on the Students' Union to offer this tutorial."

The recommendation was approved by Council.

C3. The Committee recommends that the English Language Service of the University be re-established to provide assistance in written composition to students whose original language is other than English, and feels that there is an urgent need for this type of service.

Dr. Martin commented that the English language courses offered by the Faculty of Extension were very good but that they were not enough.

Dr. Forrest mentioned that until three years ago, the University had an English Language Service that "did an excellent job." In January 1973, the Academic Development Committee reviewed the English Language Service and recommended strongly that it be retained. Four months later, the Board of Governors discontinued the Service because of financial pressures.

Dr. Murray (Engineering) moved an amendment to this recommendation that would make the reinstated English Language Service responsible for all remedial instruction in English language arts. He felt that the English Department was reluctant to teach remedial English. Representatives from the English Department said that, to the contrary, their department was committed to teaching remedial English and that the Association of Canadian University Teachers of English had passed a resolution recommending that remedial English be taught by English Departments. It was also noted that those who were not native speakers of English required special methods of instruction that were considerably different from native speakers' requirements.

The amendment was defeated and the original recommendation approved.

C4. In order to emphasize the crucial role of written work within the basic notion of competence in a subject matter or discipline, the Committee recommends that General Faculties Council urge all instructors of University undergraduate courses to provide that suitable portions of course testing or other course work should be in the form of written essay responses and to emphasize to students that competence in written work is integral to competence in a subject and will constitute part of the basis on which a student's course grade is determined.

Dr. Martin said that he hoped that this recommendation was redundant but wished to give a clear message to students that written work formed a necessary part of their university education.

The recommendation was approved in principle.

C5. Because of widespread student uncertainty within the University as to writing expectations and standards within particular courses, the Committee recommends that General Faculties Council urge all instructors of University undergraduate courses to make these expectations and standards clear at the outset of each course so as to minimize uncertainty in the students' approach to their written assignments and examinations.

Dr. Martin mentioned that this was an important cause of student anxiety.

The recommendation was approved in principle.

C6. The original motion, that Council support a proposal by the Department of English to host a provincial conference on literacy this fall, was withdrawn, because the conference had already been held on 22 and 23 October. It was noted that 337 people registered for the conference; Dr. Martin pointed at this large number of participants as an indication of the enormous interest of school people in this matter.

Council approved a motion commending the English Department and the conveners of the conference, Professors Merrett and Gallivan, for their organization of the conference on literacy.

Teacher preparation and certification

Council then proceeded to discuss the recommendations of section A of the report, "Teacher Preparation and Certification."

A1. The Committee recommends that the Faculty of Education devise a means of ensuring some reasonable level of competence in writing on the part of all students preparing to teach in any subject at any grade level, as is currently done for oral proficiency by the speech test.

Dr. Martin commented that "many of the people in my course [in Secondary Education] are not only inept but exquisitely uncomfortable" writing their own language. He noted that a remedial apparatus already existed in the Faculty of Education for oral English proficiency. He believed that competence in English should perhaps be higher for potential teachers than for others so that (1) they could serve as examples to their students and (2) they would be equipped to cope with their students' written assignments.

Walter Worth, Dean of Education, said that his Faculty now had a mechanism to review its undergraduate program. He moved that this recommendation be referred to the Faculty of Education for study and report by the end of this academic year. This motion was carried.

A2. The Committee recommends that the Faculty of Education require from all prospective teachers of English or Language Arts at elementary or secondary level suitable course work in writing and/or the teaching of writing to equip them to assess competently the writing done by their students and to instruct them in composition.

This recommendation similarly was referred to the Faculty of Education for study and report by the end if this academic year.

A3. To assist prospective teachers in carrying out their responsibilities in the teaching of writing, the Committee recommends that the Department of English make available to all students in the Faculty of Education a 300-level course in English composition without further prerequisites beyond a 200-level course in English.

At the suggestion of Dean Baldwin, the following recommendation was substituted and approved.

That GFC urge the Department of English to offer, as soon as possible, at least one full-year course (or two half-year courses) in English Composition and Rhetoric at the 300-level, with appropriate prerequisites, primarily for students in the Faculty of Education, but open to others at the discretion of the department.

A4. In light of the present situation in the schools . . . the Committee recommends that General Faculties Council endorse the principle that teacher certification in the secondary schools of Alberta should be specific as to level and subject matter. More specifically, as a condition of secondary school accreditation, a specified high percentage of English or Language Arts courses should be taught by teachers holding certification or later endorsement of certification in the subject.

Dr. Martin noted that this recommendation was opposed by many people in the University, including Vice-President (Academic) Horowitz and his own Faculty, but was supported by supervisors of language instruction in both public and separate school systems. He commented that many of the people he had trained to teach English were teaching other, often unrelated, subjects and that people trained to teach other subjects were teaching English.

Council agreed to refer this recommendation without prejudice to the Board of Teacher Education and Certification with an invitation to comment.

Discussion of the remaining two sections of the report, B (School Curriculum and Teaching Practice) and D (Implementation), will continue at the regular November meeting of General Faculties Council.

GENERAL FACULTIES COUNCIL

Apart from discussing the report of the ad hoc Committee to Investigate Undergraduate Writing Skills, General Faculties Council considered the following items at its regular meeting of 25 October.

Extension of Library Hours

Council discussed a request from the Students' Union that University Library hours be extended.

In a letter from Students' Union Vice-President (Academic), Ken McFarlane, the Library was asked to provide extended hours of accessibility and service, particularly on Fridays and weekends. The Library Committee reported that it had considered this request at its meeting on 14 October. That committee agreed that "the case of students for somewhat longer weekend hours had merit, particularly with respect to earlier building opening and circulation hours on Sundays . . . and the extension of such times and services so as to include Friday evenings to 10 p.m. in the case of the Education Library (as is presently the case for other major parts of the system)." The committee accorded a lower priority to Saturday evening openings, generally later hours and services (except for the slight extension of evening circulation hours), and for evening openings in the specialized service and collections areas because it was considered that the added utilization would be insufficient to merit the added cost.

The Library Committee also expressed concern about the existing security of both persons and materials during weekend and late evening hours "when many parts of the buildings are open but remain largely unattended by proximate supervisory, security, or even caretaking staff."

Both the Library Committee, in its written submission, and University Librarian Bruce Peel felt that "any additional staffing of late evening and weekend services should not be undertaken at the expense of the book and materials budget." Mr. Peel pointed to a world-wide inflation rate of some twenty percent per year in the price of books and periodicals. He also mentioned that library hours would be extended on weekends prior to exams, commencing two Sundays before exam week.

Council then approved in principle the following motion brought forward by the Students' Union: that because General Faculties Council recognizes the very significant academic value and necessity of providing students with access to the campus library facilities at as wide a range of times as possible, the Council strongly recommends that the University provide the necessary funds to the Library to be used specifically to finance the increased hours that were outlined in the Students' Union letter of 20 July to the Chief Librarian. It is understood that such increased hours should commence at the earliest possible date and be continued in all subsequent years. Council agreed that this motion be forwarded to the University Planning Committee for its consideration and that UPC be instructed to consider the priorities concerning the library's hours of operation as outlined in the letter from the Students' Union.

Selection Committees for Deans

Council approved the request of the Faculty of Arts Council that a department chairman from the Faculty of Arts, elected by the department chairmen of that Faculty, be added to the existing composition of the Selection Committee for the Dean of Arts.

George Baldwin, Dean of Arts, added that this request was also made by implication for any Review Committee for the Dean of Arts.

Council also approved the principle that in departmentalized faculties, one chairman, elected by the department chairmen in that faculty, be added to the selection and/or review committee for a dean.

The present composition of selection committees for deans is as follows: the Vice-President (Academic), who acts as Chairman; the Dean of Graduate Studies or his designee; three full-time academic members of the Faculty Council concerned; three full-time students (one graduate and two undergraduate) of the faculty concerned; and one or two persons elected by GFC, depending on the inclusion in a particular selection committee of one or more members of professional associations or affiliated institutions.

NATIONAL STUDENT DAY

Tuesday, 9 November, is National Student Day. On campuses throughout the country, university students will be discussing various aspects of post-secondary education that directly affect them.

On this campus, National Student Day, which is organized by the National Union of Students, the Federation of Alberta Students, and the Students' Union, will focus on the issues of post-secondary financing and accessibility. Panel discussions, a question period with the Minister of Advanced Education and Manpower, a general meeting of the Students' Council, and a free movie are the activities planned.

From 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon, two panel discussions will take place. One, to be held in 142 Students' Union Building, will take up the question of student aid and summer employment. It features a panel composed of Ken McFarlane of the Students' Union, Larry Henderson of the Student Awards Office, and Barry Galbraith of Hire-a-Student; the moderator is Howard Hoggins, Students' Union Executive Vice-President. The other panel discussion will take place at the same time in SUB Theatre and will deal with the topic of government cutbacks and tuition.

From 12 noon until 1:30 p.m. in SUB Theatre, A.E. Hohol, Minister of Advanced Education and Manpower, will participate in a question period. He will answer questions directed to him by a panel composed of Len Zoeteman, Students' Union President; Brian Masson, Secretary of the Federation of Alberta Students; Kevin Gillese, Editor of The Gateway; and A.K. Davis, Professor of Sociology. Mr. Hohol will also be open to questions from the floor.

At 1:30 p.m. in the SUB Theatre, the Students' Council will hold a general meeting and forum. The movie Getting Straight, starring Elliot Gould, will be shown free of charge at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the SUB Theatre.

Although this is a day primarily for students to increase their awareness of the problems they face, faculty members, interested persons from the community, and any others are

At Printing Services, degrees are being printed in preparation for Fall Convocation, which will take place at 2 p.m. on Saturday, 20 November, at the Jubilee Auditorium. Mary Percy Jackson, a physician who served the Peace River country for forty-five years, will receive an Honorary Doctor of Laws at the ceremony. Graduands are reminded that all seats at Convocation are reserved; the Office of the Registrar must be informed of plans to attend Convocation before 5 November. Each graduand who notifies the Office of the Registrar will be allowed two reserved seat tickets for relatives and friends; a limited supply of extra tickets will be available on a first come, first served basis. Tickets may be picked up at the Office of the Registrar on Friday, 19 November, during office hours and on Saturday, 20 November, from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

FUND IN HONOUR OF THE TORY LECTURER

Thomas O. Enders delivered the annual Henry Marshall Tory Lecture on 1 November. Mr. Enders is United States Ambassador to Canada, and in recognition of his contribution as Tory Lecturer the Friends of the University, who sponsor the Tory Lecture, have created a fund to be used to reward work done by University students in the field of international relations. The Friends have established a $500 fund, and each year for the next five years $100 will be awarded to the student who writes the best paper on a topic in that field. The recipients of the award will be chosen by members of the Department of Political Science who are involved in teaching courses that include the subject of international relations.

CANADIAN LIQUID AIR AWARDS

The two outstanding first-year students in the 1975-76 Master of Health Services Administration program at the University and the Deputy Minister of Health in Saskatchewan were honoured at a banquet sponsored by Canadian Liquid Air Limited on 17 September 1976.

Myroslaw B. Kohut received the Health Services Administration Award in recognition of his exceptional academic achievement. Mr. Kohut graduated from the University of Alberta in 1966 with a BSc (Honours) degree and received an MSc (Physics) degree from the University of Toronto in 1968. Prior to entering the MHSA program, he was Chairman of the Applied Science and Health Department in the Confederation College of Applied Arts and Technology in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

The Health Services Administration Award was presented in honour of M.B. Derrick, Deputy Minister of the Saskatchewan Department of Health, in recognition of his outstanding contribution to health administration in Canada over many years. Mr. Derrick has held positions in the Saskatchewan Department of Health as Associate Deputy Minister and as Executive Director of the Saskatchewan Hospital Services Plan. Previously, he was the Executive Director of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission.

The Canadian Liquid Air Award for 1975-76 was presented by Blair G. Richardson.

Originally from Montreal, Mr. Richardson graduate in 1969 from McGill University with a BA degree and was Senior Research Officer with the New Brunswick Department of Health prior to entering the MHSA program.

Given each year by Canadian Liquid Air Limited as a contribution toward studies in health administration in Canada, the two awards provide scholarships of $1,000 and $500 to the recipients.

SOIL SURVEY REPORTS

The Alberta Institute of Pedology, a cooperative venture of the Department of Soil Science, the Soils Division of the Research Council of Alberta, and the Alberta Pedology section of the Research Branch of Agriculture Canada, announces the release of Alberta Soil Survey Report Number 34, Soil Survey of the Sand River Area (73L) by S.S. Kocaoglu, Research Officer with the Research Branch of Agriculture Canada. The report deals with an area of about three million acres east and south from Lac La Biche to the Saskatchewan border and takes in the Ashmont, Bonnyville, and Cold Lake areas. It provides general descriptions of the area as well as the various soils and land units recognized by the survey. A section on the use and management of soils with emphasis on agriculture is also included. The report is available from the Faculty of Extension or from the Bookstore at a cost of $5 per copy.

Limited numbers of Soils of the Fort McMurray Region, Alberta by P.H. Crown and A.G. Twardy, Research Officers with the Research Branch, Agriculture Canada, and the Research Council of Alberta, respectively, are also available. This report describes the soil characteristics of 288 square miles immediately surrounding Fort McMurray, discussing suitability for agriculture and urban development.

Two other Soil Survey Reports have been reprinted and are now available from the Faculty of Extension for $2 per copy. The two reports are Soil Survey of the High Prairie and McLennan Sheets and Soil Survey of the Red Deer Sheet.

INTERPRETATION OF ACADEMIC STAFF AGREEMENT—PART I

In our letter of 27 September 1976 to all staff members covered by Academic Staff Agreement—Part I, the following statement appeared with respect to the interpretation of clause 29.03 of the Academic Staff Agreement—Part I:

Clause 29.03 provides that each staff member must submit, on an annual basis, a statement as to the extent of "outside professional activities." The statement is to include a report on such activities undertaken during the past academic year as well as a forecast of those activities during the current year. The report is to be submitted to the department chairman and dean by September 15 each year. The first such report is due on September 15, 1977. It will cover actual activities during 1976-77 and forecast activities during 1977-78.

Clause 29.02 of the Agreement requires each Faculty Council to obtain Board approval for the criteria and procedures for the administration and control of supplemental professional activities. Clause 36.03 permits policies and procedures in existence prior to 1 July 1976 to be carried forward until new procedures are approved by Faculty Councils. Accordingly, it has been agreed that Section 113.1 of the Faculty Handbook 1968 will remain in effect until 30 June 1977. This section is as follows:

Any proposal for employment beyond a faculty member's normal responsibilities to the University must be approved by the Chairman of the Department and the Dean of the Faculty, in writing.

The above is considered to be a revision to the interpretation of clause 29.03 as set out in our letter of 27 September 1976.
